

AMG SYSTEMS CELEBRATES OUTSTANDING DOUBLE WIN

Biggleswade company leads the county to UK Chamber Awards 2005 finals with two key export awards

14 September 2005 - AMG Systems, the leading CCTV solutions company, is celebrating today after winning two coveted awards for its burgeoning export business at the prestigious Chamber Business Awards 2005. The company won the UK Trade & Industry Regional Award for Export Business of the Year and the Regional Award for Export Communicator of the Year.

AMG will receive their double awards at a special regional event to be held on 30 September at Woburn Sands Safari. They will then join and compete with the other regional winners at the UK national finals in London at the end of November where the overall winners of the Chamber Awards 2005, including the grand prize of £25,000, will be announced.

The Chamber Awards are sponsored by Microsoft, BT, BUPA, The Daily Telegraph, Travelex and the Learning and Skills Council amongst others. Launched by the British Chambers of Commerce (BCC) in 2004, the awards recognise and celebrate business excellence through the successes and achievements of its Accredited Chambers of Commerce and their members.

"Although we have to wait until November to find out who the national winner is, we're delighted to have done so well in a traditionally strong region," says Dr Alan Hayes, AMG's managing director. "As AMG continues to grow within the UK and establish itself in new and demanding foreign markets, receiving such high profile recognition is a phenomenal boost for the entire staff who are working so hard to secure our continued growth."

"For one company in Bedfordshire to win 2 awards is a fantastic achievement," comments Anton Rudgalvis, Head of the U K Trade & Investment International Trade Team based at the Business Link in Luton. "I am delighted to have worked with AMG Systems in the UKTI Passport to Export Programme over the past two years. I look forward to continuing my work with them and wish them every success for the future. Keep up the good work!"

AMG cited its recent projects in Athens to help the city prepare for the 2004 Olympic Games, as well as initiatives in the Middle East and the Far East, in its original submission. Founded in 1990 by Dr Alan Hayes, the company has used its considerable success in the UK market to break into and support foreign markets.
